Of the unconscious childish habit of staring about while drinking, instead of looking into the cap, I vividly remember being cured by an aunt, who would take her own cup in hand and show us how we looked, by putting the cup to her fips and rolling her ceps all round the table. Afterwards, if we were caught in the act, she would call out "Constable!" in a loud voice, so attracting the attention of everyone to our bad behaviour, and making us feel foolish, and, at the same time laugh at the thought fooking like a policeman with his eyes everywhere at once.

A Convenient Way of Keeping a Supply,

In winter thue in Siberla milk goes to the buyer fin a chunk instead of a quart. The people buy their milk frozen and for convenience it is allowed to freeze affort a stick, whilele comes are a hondle to carry it by.

The chilkman leaves one chunk or two chanks, as the case may be, at the houses of his customers. The children in Irkutsk, instead of crying for a drink of milk, cry for a bile of milk.

The people in winter do not say, "De careful not to spill the milk." but "Be careful not to break the milk," but "Be careful not to save the pleces. A quart of frozen milk on a stick is a very formidable weapon in the hand of an anaxy man or boy, as it is possible to knock a person down with it.

There is a legend that comes down from the early ages with regard to Thomas Didymus, one of the apostles which, whether true or no. is worth emembering for the lesson it teach-which, whether true or no. is worth remembering for the lesson it teaches.

As will be seen by John xi. 16; xiv. 5: xx. 20-29, Thomas was troubled with doubts and fears. The story goes that some years after the interview with the Lord, described in John xx. Thomas main fell into doubt, the went to first one apostle and then another to tell them of his troubles, but they were all zo much occupied that they had neither time nor heimation to listen. He went to several devout women, but they, Dorcas-filke, were far too busy and too short of time to listen.

It gradually dawned upon Thomas that possibly one reason why his brothers and sisters were so little troubled with doubts was that they were so busy. Accordingly the legend slates that he went forth into Parthal, preaching and teaching the Gospel there and was never troubled with doubts any more.

The prevalence of deabt and upon the leart and life ight is accordance with the will of God. It is little use combatting ment so doubts and unhelled, these are only symptoms of the disease at the back. We med these things will rectify them-elves.—Bandsman and Song-ier.

A Very Queer Case of Conversion.

A number of years ago a young man, who nad formed the lead habit of drinking intoxicating Blouors, wandered into an Army Barracks and snt down. He was very drunk, but, when invited to come to Carlst, under his way to the pentitent form, and, falling to his knees, fell fast as-leep, On waking up, he struggled to his feet, and when nesked if he was saved, answered, "Yes," and went home. Next morning his relatives, who had heard of his doings the night hefore, asked him about it, and were much surprised to find that he knew nothing of woat he had done. On hearing the facts of the case, he said, "Well, if I really did do it, I will still the total the determined to

A Soul-Fisher's Song.

Had a Great Effect on Cornish Fisher Folk

When The Army's work was commenced in Cornwall, a great impression was made on the fisherment, the singling in the meetings, to the tame of "Then awake happy son; the old song which ran as follows:—

Cast the net, cast the net. Fish for souls, fish for souls. Some are caught, some are caught, But we mean to catch some more. Yes, the fish are large, and the water's at the brink.

But the Salvation vessel will never. never sink, No! the Salvation vessel will never, never sink; While the Master stays on board.

While the Master stays on board.

Many a time the Gospel net was pulled in with good effect, while this was being sung. But while a few corps may be blessed with shoals of souls, a greater number of satisfactory captures are made by the individual effort of those with any real fishers of men, and who deal successfully with the individual. Surely there is no greater joy to a lover of souls than when a sinner close to his feet and cose out to the jestilent from seeking God's forgiveness—Vietory.

are invited to correspond with the Counsellors appointed, and none of these letters are opened by others than those for whom they are intended. When the homes and surroundings of the majority of these Young People are considered, it will be seen that the correspondence must necessarily be largely of a private nature. Almost all of them are working for the'r many under such disadvantageous circumstances as would danne many less carnest sonls than they are encouraged to expect to be. Worldly families, ungodly relatives, persecuting workmates, surround them; and often under positively cruel conditions, and immoral temptations, they are seeking to five the life of Jesus Christ, and to show it is deliv-

A Wonderful Key.

All these subjects referred to at times perplex them, and to provide for those who need private coursel and advice is part of the work of the great Organisation to which they belong,
In : peaking of her many-sided work, the Women's Counsellor says:

"The worst people i ever came in contact with have had some desire to be good; if one only ge's near enough to them it can be surely felt. "The man that both friends must show himself friendly." Kindness is a wonderful key. Seeing the good in a person; keeping one's heart tender that one is not always on the look-out for faults but for valu keeping strong one's own hope for each—these are needful if one would g've the right kind of help.

One young man wrote to the Counsellor saying that he had been givently troubled for some years by reason of certain nuconfessed wrong. He was employed on the elerical staff of one of our great railways, and had risen to a fairly good position. The only way to advance-ment was to pass certain test examinations, which he had succeeded in doing, carning three promotions as a result.

His con-elence troubled him, however, because of the fact that, through the full dessuess of another clerk, he had seen the question proper before the examination, and had, consequently, primed himself papers before the examination, and had, consequently, primed hir with the answers, thus gaining his advancement by unfair means. papers before the examination, and had,

In his distress he confided in the Mon's Counseller, and, of course, was urged to make a full confession. About this he felt terribly, until it was suggested that the Counsellor should see the railway officials himself. The was done, with the result that the lad was forgiven. He is now a Salvation'st, and hopes eventually to become an Officer.

Home difficulties prompt many scores of letters. "Wi "What can I do with my drunken father?" runs one pathetic appeal for advice,

"I have a dranken mother," admitted a girl who sought encouragement at one of the Chef's meetings. "These clothes I wear to-day, will probably be provided to-morrow, and I may not see them again for months."

"In that statement correct?" was asked of a Local Officer standing

"Ah, yes." he replied, "that girl has lived in her wretched home as a true Christian for four years—and a lovely life it has been, too. Help her all you can!"

Another girl, who looks as clear and sweet as a daisy comes from a dwelling that is oft-times like a veritable presty. Her mother is hearly always drunk; and, with nothing else on but a skirt, a lacket and tiently always around; and, with nothing ever on the sarch of her daughter, who sits on the platform. At sight of her the g'rl's lips may tighten a little, and her face flush with pain, but she stips quietly down, tenderly leads, out the besetted wrock, and takes has home against the large of the same to bed. Not a failure of a mother, from anybody under the sun, but God and the Young People's Counsellor glone know the agony of it all.

The home of one poor lassic is a drinks-hop, and although so young, she is fiterally forced by Let mother to serve beer and spirits in the bar, "There is money in 't," says the mother, "and you shall sell; I'll

Yet another is "mothering" a family of young children, and keeping her widowed father's house. She carries a terrible burden, however, that no one has ever gatessed. The washing, cooking, meading, serubbing, and nursing she does gladly, without a single regret that all her bright, young life s being spent on a woman's work without young are so orang spent on a woman's work without a woman's per-flue magnish lies in her ineffectual attempts to keep her father from fear-ful wrongdotta. Titls is asclarg her. To find in the Young People's Coun-sellor a friend who will not fail her, whose help is quick and whose advice is always ready, is indeed a godsend to this brave hardenth-arer. She always has covery and he contented and in her? She shares her sorrow, and is comforted and upheld.

The Comic Side.

Some of these girls need the burden wresting from them, rather than power given them to go on carrying it. Grace, for instance (fust because that is not her name), has shown the spony side of her Salvationcame that is not her harm, has shown the stum, sade of her salvations in her home for years. She and her mother have worked in a factory and early and late she has toiled in order to keep the house bright and specifies; but the girl's wages have been forced out of her to the last halfgomy, and spent in drink. Woman though she is, she has been treated like a child of ten, and thrashed until her bruises became a serous thing

At last matters reached a crisis, and Grace was hurried off to a good Salvation st's home. The mother sought will the found her, when she smashed every window of the house within reach. Grabe was lodged elsewhere, but with the same result. At length the London Headquarters took the matter in hand, and Grace is using her life to-day to better purpose—using for others the lessons she learned in her school of sorrow,

But they are not all tragedies which claim the attention of the Conn-Sometimes it is health, and if the general ignorance were pitiful, it would possess a comic side. The Counsellor is obliged to study pretty closely the cause and effect of physical ills, with certain needful forms of treatment before she can advise in the varied cases that come

Questions Asked.

But these cases are not ignored, or treated with a smile. "There is But these cases are not general, or treates with a since. Laure is a reason for this," says the Counsellor, and forthwith sets to work to find it out and offer the right remedy—aided frequently, of course, by the Medical Officer of the International Headquarters.

In letters and lectures alike, the Counsellor insists upon rational eating, rational breathing, rational bathing rational exercise, and the effects of such simple treatment are already showing themselves in the upbuilding of many weakened constitutions

Difficulties regarding situations claim a good deal of attention. Sometimes it 's the fault of the employer, sometimes the fault of the enolived. Whatever it is must be found and dealt with. A legal question is frequently involved; ignorance on the part of a lad or girl must be enlightened, and assistance profored where necessary. Many such queries as the following are put to the Counsellors on both sides:—

There is Sunday trading carried on in my situation. As a Salvationist, ought I to leave?"
"They sell drink in the shop where I serve. Although I am not required to measure it out, ought I to countenance the sale by remaining I am an artist's model, and know how to do nothing else. But I have been converted; ought I to give up my livelihood?"

"I spend all my life in ministring to fashion—am a milliner. I know no other trade. What shall I do?"

"I am in service, and am bard at it from 6.20 a. m. to 11.20 p. m. Is wrong to complain? I am always so t'red?"
"My fellowserrants toranent me all the time, because I am a Salvationist. They throw drink over me because i refuse it. Ought I to go on putting up wils, it? Would it be rowardly to leave?"

"I have been seddenly paid off from my situation and must leave in a day or two," wrote east girl. "I do not want to be a burden on my other while seeking another place, but have only my mouth's money.

In a few bours after the receipt of the letter, the young women was received into the of our Holling Homes, where the fee was so low that she could rest in comfort of mind while look up for a place.

So for the time being he became assistant to Adjutant Sims, helping to serve the customers who streamed in and out all day, and taking mental notes of all that happened on the precisions. As a result of his observations he has reached the conclusion that the Satvage Store has more than justified its, existence, and is proving a real boon to poor people. Just here we might state that the primary reason for the starting of this work was to provide food and shelter, and temporary employment for men who, through nisfortune, were destitute and homeless, yet willing to work for their living, A secondary reason, really the outcome of the first, was to help poor people obtain clothing and furniture at very low rates. Keeping these two points in view, therefore, our representative endeavoured to discover to what extent the Salvage Department was fulfilling its mission. On making a tour of the premises he ascertained opened on Queen Street. So for the People now begin to come to the store to get their wants supplied, and many pathetic stories are poured into the ears of the Adjutant and his assistants during the day. Here comes a fittle girl, holding her smaller brother by the hand. She has a wistful expression on her face as she timidig advances to the counter and peers over the top of it.

Well, what do you want, my little dear?"

"Well, what do you want, my little dear?"
"If you please, sir, I don't want nothing, but my brother stimule hasn't get no boots or storking, and mother sent me round to ask if you could let him have some for five cents. It's all the money mother has to spare, and Jimmie has to go to a Sunday School concert to-morrow, and he will be dreadful disappointed if he has to stay home cares of haring no boots to put on."

All this was spoken rapidly and with caperness, as the little sir! looked up appealingly at the man behind the counter. Her request would have meited a hear; of stone, and, needless to say, Jimmie was soon trotting off home, clad in some nice boots as dischings. Later on, another little girl appeared. Her story was ear more plitful. She wanted some clother for her brother.

"Where is he?" she was asked. "Oh, I couldn't oring him with me, because he's got nothing to wear, was the reply, "but, I guess I can tell what'll fit him, and please mister, can you let me have the things for fifteen cents, lease it's all mother has got."

They adopted a resolution mediag President that I arrive the Inflative in leading the nations to a concurrent limitation or reliation in the armies and navies of the world.

This most emphasic address of the day was given by J. Allen Baker, a Canadian-born member of the British Parlament, who emphasizes the continuous neighboring and goal-fel-loweship of the United States and Louise and canadars and example for the nations of what the absence of armaments and for the days would do to promote peace. Rey, Frederick Lynch, pastor of the Pilighin Church, New York, declared that "it is the shame of the ease that every church in dermany. Bugland and America is not protesting against these great pagan, overwhelming armaments."

Mr Richardson, of Philadelphia, presented a report of a special committee, showing that nearly 200 feading chambers of commerce and boards of trade, in all the large cities of the contry, were co-operating with the conference in promoting international arbitration.

Even so, has It been at times without number with some starving and thirsty soul that has gone on feebly trying to live a nathued life, shut up in itself, alling, feeble. There has descended upon it what looks at first dike a calamity, some affletion unaccomitable and 'reparable; and then it proves that this was the one thing needed, that sorrow has brought on some latent unselfishness, or suffering energies some unused faculty or strength and pattence.

What a Song Did.

A song often accomplishes A song often accomplishes what spoken words cannot. This fact was shown a short time ago, when an old man, a backslider, lay on his death-bed. He was a sited by an Army Officer, who vainly endeavoured to get the poor old mun to again accept salvation by faith.

But his mind and will were weak his faith small, and no light broke in upon his goul, ius, the Officer was reminded of an old, old song. It was this:

There is a gate that stands ajar.
And through its portals gleaming;
A radiance from the Cross afar,
The Savious's love revealing.

With a low, sweet voice, she sang

With a low, sweet vo'ce, she sang the verse and chorns, again and again, anxiotaly watching the aged man's face.

That soug won a soul. Tears coursed down the old man's furrowed cheeks, and, with one hast effort, he cried out, "I can see the gates opening now; they're opening for meaning the content of the course of the content of the course of the c

The Principle of the Thing.

A good lawyer learns many lessons in the school of human nature, and thus 't was that Lawyer Hackett did not fear to purchase a tract of land which had been "lawed over" for years. Some of the people wondered why he wanted to get hold of properly with such an incubus of uncertainty upon it. Others thought that penhaps he wanted some legal knitting work, and would pitch in red-hot to fight that line-fence question on h's own hook. That's what the owner of the adjoining sand thought. So he braced himself for trouble when he saw Backett coming across the field one day. Said aclose: "What's your claim here, anyway, as to this fence?"

"Your fence is over on my land two feet at one end, and one foot at the other end."
"Well," replied Hackett, "you go alread and set your fence over. At the end where you say that I encroach on you two feet, set the forecach my land four feet. At the other end push is on my land two feet."
"But," persisted the neighbour, "that's twice what I claim."
"I don't care about that," said heacht. "There's been fielt cough over this land. I want you to take enough so you are perfectly satisfied, and their we can set dang pleasantly.

and then we can get along pleasantly. Go ahead and help yourself." The man paused, abashed the had been ready to commence the old struggle, both tooth and nail, but this move of the new neighbour stunned him. Yet the new neighbour stunned him. Yet he wasn't to be outdone in generosity. He booked at Hackett: "Spire," sold he, "that fence ain't going to be naved an meh. I don't want the land. There wa'n't neilhing in the fight anyway but the principle of the thing."

The stranger said that God had directed him to the Quarters, and with a "God bless you," he left a $10.00 bill in the Captain's hand. That was all, but the Captain re-jo'ced.

He Met His Match.

A lassic Salvationist, War Crrs in hand, one day entered a saloon in a certain Outario city. The place was almost full of men, but the Crrs were not sold very ray-dif. Saddenly a big burly fellow steaped from a group of men with whom he had been conversing, and fupped the lassic on the shoulder, and the feeling at the still, "how would it do for me to propose to you?"

The bouneted lassic passed for a moment, and then facing her bold enquirer, rejield, "Do you think that you would rever many a some who hade't would ever many a some who hade't gampilou or strength cooring to like the Regina's German Corps Started.

Boom! Boom! went the drum, and eyes and ears were all attention in the foreign port of Regina City.

It was Sunday evening, May 16th. when a small erowd of faithful Sal-vationists, with the hig drum, as-sembled in front of the hotels in Germantown. Soon a crowd assembled and an open-air meeting, conducted mostly in German, was in full swing. The looder was a conny Scot, and ho was rolling off German by the yard. could not understand what he was saving at least the British percould not, but as soon he started the tune, we knew what it was, and when he rang out the "Wir werden siegen." and in English, "We shall win." we fairly shouted it out, for we meant The crowd of Germans looked on and appeared to be very interested Testimonies and choruses followed in rapid succession, and at the close of the meeting we storted off for the Hall that has been occulred for our meetings in another portion of the suburh.

Boom! boom! boom! again rong out the drum, and the crowd followed. They filled the Hail. The major pertion of the Corps marched off to their own stand, holding another open-air, again attracting a big crowd, followed plendid meeting-which is another story.

And so the German work in our city was started, the leader being Brother Gibson, who was assisted by German-speaking friends, the Tuesday following the first meeting, out of a small crowd, four cases of conversion resulted .- Schau

PEACE ON EARTH.

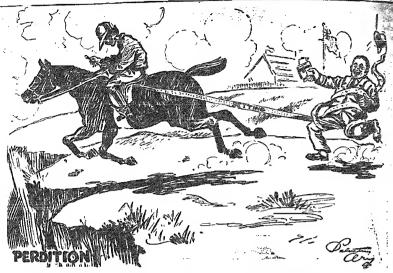

There seems to be considerable unrest amongst the great world powers at the present time. Rumours of wars are rife in various parts of the old world-wars of such magnitude as may come sweeping over the seas to the American Continent. One writer advises the cultivation of beiter relations between the various parts of the British Empire, and the United States, and proposes that the Americans should be officially invited to share in the future Empire Day celebrations, and England to celebrate an America Day. The idea is good enough-at any rate, the object in view is commendable, and we wish anything set on foot to promote the brotherhood of nations the best of suecess.

We wonder however if it is realfeed what an important part in bringing about the brotherhood of man, The Salvation Army plays. The interchange of Officers-that is to say, British Officers going to all parts of the world and foreign-speaking Officers going to all parts of the British Empire-must contribate materially to bringing about goodwill among men of differen races and speech. consider for instance what an effect the old Canadian Officers now in the United States must have upon those born under the Stars and Strines, Colonels McIntyre Margetts Addle, and others, in their great positions of influence, must exercise a gast power in making harmonious feelings between men of the two nations; for, justing from what have beard thom say, when they have gurned longing ages toward Dominion in the Inclough season, they possess great affection for the Land of the Maple. This is how it ought to be.

Then, again, London is regarded as the Mecca of Salvation ats. Every where, all eyes that caze with loy upon the flag with the flery star, think lovingly of Milecand Waste, and Abnoy Park Cemerery. This feeling was touchingly illustrated some time ago, when Brigadler Yanamuro, the Chief Secretary of Japan, and a number of his compations, visited the place where The Arios first began in Whitechapet, and the sacred spot in Abnoy Park Cemetry where the grave of The Army Mother is situated, and, stooping down, these gradeful Orientals idseed the ground that was so intimately acquainted with what they hold in the most sacred gogard.

The feeling is very widespread, and must conduce to the unity of the mutions; and Salvationists everywhere should exert all their personal influence, and that which their various opportunities afford to break! down everything like rucial III feeling, and strive to muke all believe and act upon the principle that dod has made of one blood, all nations and races of men, and pray for that these when wars shall be no more.

Successful Visit by Two Captains to the Miners of Bessimer.

A visit was lately paid by Captains lones and Manulon, to the Bessimer Mines, Northern Ontarlo. The miners, under the leadership of Brother Maltby, a Salvat onist of Trenton Corps, the helder of a very important position at Bessimer, met the Officers at the station, and gave them a hearty welcome. The people seemed to vie with each other in their desire to show their delight at this, the first visit of The Salvation Army to their town. The leading people of the place expressed the same pleasure, and gave greeting in the same nunifstakeable way,

Everybody, it would seem, turned out at night, to listen to the first open-air service (the first most of the people had ever witnessed.) "Just the thing," said a m ne manager, after hearing the hearty singing, religion with some dash in l'; that's what's wanted here."

Five For Salvation.

Regina Corps has smashed its target. Mrs. Adjutant Cummins and Captain Askin were at towns along the main line of the C. P. R., and were well received. The ministers were particularly kind, and all contributed.

At simialuta, the Officers slayed at hotel, the proprietor of which is a Roman Catholic, but the good lady of the house insisted on making them a cup of tea when they arrived there late at night, and the proprietor him-self contributed to the Self-Benial funds. At another house visited, the Officers found a little child who very sick and near death. They prayed with the mother and comforted her. A fierce blizzard came on and they had to return to Regina, as the snow was so deep. When the weather moderated they set out again on their collecting tour, and on visiting the house above ment oned, found that the child was much better. The mother said that the Officers had een the only ones to minister to her,

We had a very gratifying break at our meeting on last Sunday evening. When volunteers for salvation were asked for, a young girl left ber seat and sought salvation. She lowed by two young men. When the meeting closed, five were found at the penitent form. Hallelujah!

A Turkish Marriage.

A Turkish Marriage.

In Turkey marr age is a strictly civil act, the validity of which consists in its being attested by at least two witnesses; and although an iman, or prest, is usually present at the signing of the contract, it is in his legal rather than in his religious capacity. The evil ceremony is simplicity itself. The bridgeroom and his witnesses repair to the home of the hidde, in the selamit k of which her made relatives discuss with them the payment of the neklah. This question settled and the contract drawn up, the brilegroom thrice rebats his des re to marry the daughter of the home, upon which the intem proceeds to the door community. brawn up, the brestoon three re-beats his desire to marry the daugh-ter of the house, man which the man proceeds to the door communi-cating with the harenilis, behind which the bride and her female rela-tives are assembled. After announ-ing the amount of the nekind arreed upon, the man asks the madden if she accepts the suitor for her hus-land. The question and the affirma-tive answer having been thrice re-peated, the iman returns to the sel-amilit, where he attests the consent of the bride, and the couple are con-sidered to be legally married.

a dered to be legally married.

An Old Oriental Custom.

The bride and groom do not meet, however, until the conclusion of the Dughun zafeti, or week of wedding fostivities, which may not be held for some months afterward. These enterta nments, to which all frieads and relatives are invited, and at which the poor of the neighbourhood are also feasted, constitute the social sanction of the family alliance entered into in prvate. When all these formalities are at an end, and the bride has been taken in a camel-litter, preceded by bands of music and with much pomp, to her new home, if the spouse chosen for her by her parents is not attogether to her likting, she may at it refuse to accept hise as less may at it refuse to accept hise as lest nurshed. For according to an Oriental custom of immemorial an ingiver.

In the bride has bride until she has spoken to hise. The bride, it must be remembered, never sees her future husband, except from her window, as he passes in the street below. The brides had everyling of the bride's face by the brides not hise the proof in the brides and one's heart bleeds for these poor little trutklab brides suddenly transplanted from the homes of their childhood to the roof-trees of perfect stratyers. It is to be hoped that one of the first social reforms to come with the new order of things in Turkey, will be the abolition of marriage with an unknown and, in many cases, an unseen husband.

THE GENERAL.

The General's effort at the Congre Hall last Sunday was truly wonderful. In the morning he spoke with force and animation for nearly an hour, and earried his audience with him step by step. At pight he de-livered a most powerful address, which literally swayed the packed thousands that hong upon his utterances.

The crowds, too, were tremendous. In the morning, the Congress Hall was packed before the hour of com-mencement. At night it was gorged.

The General remained on the Salvation bridge for nearly four hours. Not until the hands of the clock clock neared 10 p. m., and the shouts of victory over the 200th soul at the merey seat ascended, did he retire from his post.

As we contemplated, our beloved Leader paeing the platform in the heat of the battle for souls, we were reminded of his playful remark on the occasion of the Birthday Celebrations, -that he had no intention of abdicating, Judg'ng by The General's form and leadership on Sunday, in spite of his eighty years, he is still head and shoulders above us al' in

A short time before he left England, the Major was successful in securing the degree of Doctor of Medicine from the University of Durham, in addition to his previous qualifications.

The Junior Corps of Baltimore H., has nearly two hundred children attending the Company meetings, whereas a short time ago the attendance was practically ull. The children have been won to The Army from outside eircles, through the personal visitation of the Field Officer, the Junior Sergeant-Major, and others some of whom have spent as much as three evenings per week in house o-bouse visitation, inviting the parents to send the children to The Army.

In the same way, they have gone to the young men and women who loiter about the streets with theresult that Bible Classes have been commenced for them, with over forty members in each. Several of these young people have not saved, and they are now orgaulsing a Brass Band.

Lieut. Col. Chandler had an attack of giddiness when coming into New York one morning, and he fell across the rallway track, from which he was happily rescued just before a train arrived. Lleut-Colonel Smith, the Secretary for Native Affairs, thus describes his visit to the Amaxosa Division at Easter:-

"I have just come from the Xosa Division, where I spent my Easter. On Sunday, accompanied by Major Soul, I visited Ridsdel Location. We has a very profitable day's fighting, with eight out for cleansing and three for salvation. Three of these comrades, including two sisters, gave up their pipes. The Xosa women are inveterate smokers. We had an interesting and successful experiment on Sunday afternoon in the shape of a united open-air demonstration in the Market Square, King William's Town. Five Corps united one of which came from Tshoxa, four miles away. All the "marches" converged on the Square at one time, and, as there were four drums being heartily thumped by embusiastic native drummers, sleepy King Williams got a thorough rousing. The meeting was a very good one; hundreds of Natives and many Whites listened. had two Headmen who are Salva-onists, to speak. Many natives tionists, to speak. thanked us afterwards one remarking 'You have to-day fed us; we have got meat from you.' On Easter Monday, all the Corps united at Tshoxa, where we had successful gatherings. There was great enthusiasm, estectally at the united open-air demonstra down amongst the 'raws' (heathen.)

"Our policy was never more aggressive that at present."

KOREA.

Colonel Hoggard has paid his secend visit to Pyeng Yang, where he was able to address a large crowd of persons who have signed the preliminary application to become Soldiers. The building was altogether too small, so the meetings had to be held in the open-air. At one of these, no fewer that three thousand persons were present. The Colonel delivered his message of salvation from sin through Jesus Christ, in the clearest and most upmistakable manner and more than four hundred men professed to accept it. At another meeting, 1,500 were present, and between two and three hundred gave themselves to God.

Two recent converts of Osaka H. Coris, are sailors. On their last voyage they kept up an interesting cerrespondence with the Captain of the Corps. From Nagasaki they wrote reporting the conversion of the chief older, with whom they had previously dealt about his soul, in an open-air seeting at Chemulpo, and at which they had sold thirty War Crys. At few days later they reported the con-version of the chief engineer. About this man they wrote: "He is very steady and respected us very much, so we thought he should go one step further and get saved, Thank God he is converted, and promises to go with us."

At Nagasaki they held another open-air, and sold forty more Crys. Later on they held a meeting on board a vessel had an interesting time, and disposed of thirty Crys amonest the passengers, one of whom they leit at Dalby "in God's hands, under deep conviction."

Salvation Songs

Holiness.

Tunes.--Come, comrades dear, B. B., 136; He lives, B.B., 138.

O glorlous hope of perfect love!
It lifts me up to things above;
It hears on eagles' wings.
It gives my ray'shed soul a taste,
And makes me for some moments feast
With Jesus, priests and kings.

A land of corn, and wine, and oil, Favoured with God's peculiar smile; With every blessing blest. There dwells the Lord our Rightcous-

With With the Lord out on ness, ness, and keeps His own in nerfect peace, And everlasting rest.

Tunes.—Congress, 28, C and Eb; Conference, 27; Song Book, No. 278. 2 What is salvation's glorious hope, But inward holiness? For th's, to Jesus I look up, I calmly walt for this.

I wait till He shall touch me clean, Shall life and power impart;
Give me the faith that casts out sin,
And purifies the heart.

Be it according to Thy word, Heddem me from all sin; My heart would now receive Thee, Lord, Come in, my Lord, come in!

Free and Easy.

Ark, how the watchmen cry.
Attend the trumpet's sound!
to your arms, the foe is night
e powers of Hell surround.

bow to Christ's command,
Your arms and hearts prepare!
The day of battle is at hand!
Go forth to glorlous war.

'All power to Him is given, He ever reigns the same; alvation, happiness, and Heaven Are all in Jesus' name. Balvatio

Tune.—Poor old Joe, 179, Eb; Song Book, No. 522.

Book, No. 522.

All round the world The Army charlot rolls,
All round the world the Lord is save ground.
All round the world our Soldiers will be hrave.

Around our colours we will rally—wave, Soldiers, wave.

All round, the world the Saviour's Blood shall flow,
All round the world we will to hattle go;
All round the world, the universe to save with Blood and Fire, with faith and feeling—wave, Soldiers, wave.

Salvation.

Tune.-I stand all bewildered with Wonder.

Oh, sinner, give heed to the warning—
The day of eternity's near!
Why are you so foolishly scorning
The love of a Saviour so dear?

Chorus.

Wako up, ere you swell the sud

Arise, and for heaven prepare!
Wake up, ero you swell the number
Who sink to eternal despa'r!

You may bring forth many excuses, Why you do not seek God and

But, oh, when you face the great judgment.
They'll not clear your soul on that

Tune .- Depth of Mercy, 80. Depth of mercy! Can those be Mercy still reserved for me? Amidst the Pines at Dufferin Grove.
